

WITH BULLETS FLYING GAMBLERS SPEED AWAY IN AUTO FROM POLICE

Fight With Strangers Had Taken Place in Basement
Littered With Cards.

The sound of revolver shots and the shouting of men aroused everybody in the block in Thirty-ninth street between Seventh and Eighth avenues just after daylight to-day. The revolver was fired by four policemen in pursuit of an automobile in which half a dozen young men had raced away from No. 212 West Thirty-ninth street.

None of the shots took effect and the men in the automobile got away. Investigation of the basement of No. 212 showed that it had been used as a gambling house. Ards, chips and refreshments were scattered all over the place, chairs and a table were overturned and there were other signs of a rough time in the rooms.

It appears that the young men who got away in the automobile kept the car stationed close by. They used the basement nearly every night and last night late they rounded up a couple of strangers. The strangers got into a fight with the crowd about daylight and the row awakened the landlady, Mrs. Englund.

She heard loud demands that the door be unlocked. Looking from her window she saw two men rush from the basement and run towards Eighth avenue. The face of one of the men was bleeding. Then the automobile rolled up and as policemen came running from all directions the young men boarded the car and the policeman began to shoot.

The two strangers, who were the first to leave the house, disappeared.

HIS HONOR LIKES HIS WEED.

Denver Judge Invites All in Court to Smoke with Him.

DENVER, June 8.—Judge H. A. Clegg, sitting Judge Perry in the West side Criminal Court, heard the argument yesterday for a new trial for William D. Currant, who recently was found guilty of defrauding William J. Rogers, a Denver contractor, of $5,100. Before the court for the defense began his statements the judge looked around at the group of men seated in the room. Each man held an unlighted cigar in his hand. His Honor gazed calmly at the group and said: "What do you say we all smoke?"

The answer was lost in a simultaneous outburst of laughter as Judge Clegg and lawyers and spectators all began to laugh heartily. The judge said: "I don't think I shall smoke. I don't think I shall smoke."

SCOTT PICTURES SOLD.

James Seligman, Paris Art Dealer, the Purchaser.

PARIS, June 8.—It was announced to-day that Jacques Seligman, a Paris art dealer, has acquired the late Sir John Murray Scott's art collection, which was part of the estate he bequeathed to Lady Backville.

This collection was kept in the Scott residence in the Rue de la Paix, Paris and is part of the famous Wallace collection.

Fell Into the River and Didn't Miss.

James Kane slipped off a scow tied to the foot of Rivington street to-day and fell between the scow and the pier. Half a dozen stood ready to dive for him the instant he recovered, but the tide swept the scow against the pier, where Kane was presumably crushed for he was not seen again.

Fels-Naptha Soap does better work in the best way. Just because a thing is

Anty Drudge Disagrees

Mrs. Oldham—"I told Mrs. Newfangle the other day that I wouldn't be hired to do things the way she does. Why, she says she never boils her clothes any more since you told her about some sort of soap to use. I don't think clothes that aren't rubbed and boiled are fit to wear."

Anty Drudge—"I certainly did tell her about Fels-Naptha Soap. You may like to do things the hardest way, but I know Mrs. Newfangle's clothes are just as clean as yours, and look whiter, without half the hard work. I tell every woman about Fels-Naptha Soap, and never the pity if they are too foolish to try it."

new doesn't say that it isn't as good or better than the old things we have been used to. If you don't know about Fels-Naptha Soap, it is time that you learn.

Fels-Naptha Soap is one of the changes that means a lot to tired housekeepers. It means a way of doing work well. It means saving a lot of time and trouble. It means using cool or lukewarm water; it means making things look bright and new. Anything—paint, woodwork, kitchen sinks or greasy pans, the weekly wash, fine laces, heavy blankets—looks better if done with Fels-Naptha Soap.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green
Wrapper.

Better say
Fels-Naptha
by the
